

LEARNING SPACES COLLABORATORY NATIONAL COLLOQUIUM

KANSAS CITY, MO. AIRPORT MARRIOTT/ MISSOURI INNOVATION CAMPUS (MIC)
November 1 - 3, 2019

The 2019 LSC National Colloquium focuses on these three themes.

- The experience of all 21st century learners/users
- Planning for assessing 21st century ecosystems for learning
- Permeability: Focusing on the future of 21st century learners & learning spaces

In formal and informal settings, participants from campuses and design firms will share what is known and what we are learning from theory, research, and practice about how spaces matter to the experience of each learner, how spaces serve institutional goals for inclusivity and equity. (Friday)

Informed by stories from the field presented through case studies, empirical research, and poster sessions, the colloquium conversations examine what we know and what we are learning from theory and practice about questions that matter in the process of imagining and realizing spaces as ecosystems for learning. (Saturday)

Exploring the concept of permeability as means for embracing the future of planning for assessing 21st century learning spaces. (Sunday)
