Adapting Classrooms for Student-centered & Technologically-supported Pedagogies

March 5, 2015

The central LSC strategy is to create and catalyze a feedback loop through which the broad community of stakeholders can:

- ❖ ask and respond to questions about all aspects of planning learning spaces
- ❖ collaborate in exploring lessons learned from the community of experienced practitioners
- ❖ come to understand what is known about how the quality and nature of learning spaces affects the quality and nature of learning in the undergraduate setting.

Learning Goals

To gain a deeper understanding of:

- how to evaluate each feature of a physical space for learning for its potential impact on the quality and character of the experience of learning
- what flexibility means in the context of a space intended for active, technology-enhanced learning
- the optimal relationship between the designers and users of these learning environments.

By making clear that the educational space is valuable, the administration is able to demand the due respect for it from learners.
